Notes and Comments for Person 1: Malavika already had some experience on chess, so her experience and knowledge about chess were helpful when we do our final project. She seemed to be interested in looking at the graphs and finding the take home messages from the plots, and her passion also helped our group become more passionate. She was a great partner in this project.

Notes and Comments for Person 2: Mackenzie also already had experiences on chess and it was helpful to our group; also, it was her who came up with our final group project topic. I could tell she tried her best to contribute as much as she can, even though she was busy with her swim team schedules. She contributed a lot especially on designing the poster and editing the paragraphs on the report based on what our group had discussed. She was a great partner as well in this project.

Notes and Comments for Person 3: Alex contributed a lot in r-coding part, and it was really helpful to our group. He was a passionate and responsible team member. He listened to what other team members think when we were talking about the conclusion and discussion sections. He, as well, was a great partner in this project.
